

Massive Transfusion and Traumatic Coagulopathy State of the Art Symposium

Friday 14th November 2008
at the Royal Geographical Society - South Kensington London SW7

Session 1 09:30 - 11:00

Chair: Karim Brohi, Professor of Trauma Sciences - Barts and London NHS Trust and Queen Mary, University of London

Trauma massive transfusion - epidemiology and outcomes
Surgeon Captain Mark Midwinter, Defense Professor of Surgery

What is happening in practice across the country? Trauma Audit & Research Network
Fiona Lecky, Research Director - Trauma and Audit Research Network (TARN)

Can we predict who will need a massive transfusion?
Major Tom König, Registrar for Helicopter Emergency Medical Services - Royal London Hospital

COFFEE 11:00 - 11:25

Session 2 11:25 - 13:00

Chair: Mike Laffan, Professor in Haemostasis & Thrombosis - Imperial College and Hammersmith Hospital

Trauma Induced Coagulopathy
Karim Brohi, Professor of Trauma Sciences - Barts and the London and Queen Mary, University of London

Diagnosis of Acute Coagulopathy of Trauma
Ross Davenport, Senior Research Fellow - Trauma Clinical Academic Unit Barts and the London

Thromboelastometry for Trauma
Pär Johannson, Director of Transfusion Service - Rigshospitalet Copenhagen

LUNCH 13:00 - 14:00

Session 3 14:00 - 15:00

Chair: Mark Midwinter, Defense Professor of Surgery

Damage Control Resuscitation - military experience
Colonel Tim Hodgetts, Hon Professor of Emergency Medicine and Trauma - University of Birmingham

Management of traumatic massive haemorrhage - hospital experience
Newcastle - Jonathan Wallis, Consultant Haematologist - Newcastle
The Royal London - Shubha Allard, Consultant Haematologist - Barts and the London and NHSBT

COFFEE 15:00 - 15:30

Session 4 15:30 - 17:00

Chair: Lorna Williamson, Medical Director - NHS Blood & Transplant

Evidence for the use of blood components in traumatic haemorrhage
Simon Stanworth, Consultant Haematologist - NHS Blood & Transplant

Can we deliver ready thawed FFP and high dose FFP?
Heidi Doughty, Consultant Haematologist - NHS Blood & Transplant

National Institute Health Research Programme grant - summary of aims
Proposals for national survey of management of Massive Traumatic Haemorrhage
Karim Brohi, Simon Stanworth, Shubha Allard

To book online go to www.londontraumaconference.com or telephone 07798 748906